Fun! Played for about an hour straight with my fiancée, who rarely plays VR; and she seemed to really enjoy it. Think it'll be fun with a group over as well. Can't beat the price right now for under 4 bucks if you're looking for a decent local co op VR game.. The Westport Independent is a great example of a good tiny game. It can hold your attention for a night or two. You won't regret your playtime. Regardless of fact that this is very small it has freedom of choice, quite rich branched storyline and colourful characters. Yes colorful, even if in the game you see only one or two text lines and silhouettes in cutscenes between turns. Many games with big budgets for dialogues and storylines by renowned authors couldn't give me comparable good experience. Despite the fact that questions brought up by game designers are not currently important for me because of a different attitude toward media in my country and in the western world, I am glad to see that game developers bring up questions that are important for them, I believe. Thank you guys! I don't regret spending money on it and I recommend this pretty game to everyone who reads or watches news.. Warning: If you are allergic to the following, do not play this game.

FUN

FUN-INDUCED HEADACHES. A very short but fun little game that is full of character and personality. It's also pretty tense when you are getting chased by the monster. What you have heard of, is a super stylized Turned based roguelike. So with that you know to expect to play/die/learn/repeat. This game oozes with so much charm and humor, awesome unique mechanics, while still being super accessible to people that aren't hardcore Turn based roguelike fans (looking at you Tome) Very rad funky soundtrack, tons of replayability and devs that are just so amazing and wear their heart on their sleeve to top it all off. WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR !. MESX 1.5 is not a very good game - the tracks are nearly as smooth as glass from start to finish, the front end of the bike is response-less, the rear is unpredictable, and the AI is copy+paste from the previous year. Absolutely can not recommend this game.. The game is glitchy in the following ways:

- 1) When a battle is over (for example, when the enemy fleet retreats) it tells me this and then just sits there. The only way to move on is to Task Manager - Kill the game and relaunch it.
- 2) The interface responds about 7/10ths of the time flawlessly. The other 3/10th of the time I have to flip my controller upside down, utter 10 Hail Mary's, and one time I had to sacrifice a virgin chicken in order to get the GUI to start responding again.

The game is very delightfully ... irritating. If they fixed these issues, I would really enjoy this game.

P.S. I'm using the Samsung Odyssey headset.

. One of the best TDs, in mobile phone it is free. This game was one of the most amazing games that I have ever played. I hope a second continuing comes out because I have been dreaming about one for years. The story has touched my heart and I've truly never seen such a masterpiece. I highly recommend it to all of your friends because it will give you one of the most amazing experiences in life. Best game ever <3 11/10.. CRAP!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Everything has to be controlled manually, \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665 happens and you can't do anything about it unless you see it on time. Your production reduces on its own for no apparent reason, your capital is defenseless when you are training an army to be transferred to your general. Even if you know Eastern Europe by heart, it takes too long to find something. You do everything right and revolt starts. No level of difficulty can be set. Your ambassadors disappear when no negotiation is done. Technology is expensive and you can't produce that much even if everything was built in your city. Finally, your allies launch spy attacks against you. Nothing beats Knights of Honor. DON't waste your money.

But I always blame Steam for not providing demos.
