This is yet another example of something that causes us to get writer's block. It was created by one of the world's most famous con artists, Teseo Naxos, who wanted to help you forget your clutter. They are getting people to buy their product by giving them the option to either work on building a better memory or actually have someone else build it for them at a discounted rate. The thing is, these "memory builders" are just cheap packing peanuts made out of recycled fibers and paper scraps that just barely hold together for you not to notice they're falling apart after five seconds. But when you actually receive your package, it's so fragile that you gain a new appreciation for it after the last few peanuts break in half. The thing that bothers us the most is that, when you've finally mastered that new memory building technique with Teseo Naxos' help, you're going to have a hard time forgetting about their ridiculous products in the future. It's a great way for these pickpockets to get people hooked on their product. We're sorry to say this, but if there was an award for scam of the century, then Teseo Naxos would get that award. In conclusion... Unsurprisingly, Teseo Naxos was resorted to the police. They were found guilty of creating "impressive-looking but useless" products that were a rip-off and sent to jail. It was a good way for them to get what they deserved. The greatest thing about it is that these packs of fibers & paper scraps are now on sale at a deep discount at one of the many discount stores around the world. So, if you want to buy something with an impressive look, but worthless feel...then you can now purchase this package for just $30 U.S. dollars... ..but if you buy this package, they'll only produce the most impressive-looking memories in your life . Layers of Fear is a psychological horror game created by Bloober Team, released for Microsoft Windows in December 2015. The game received critical acclaim upon release, although some critics felt it overstepped into pretentious territory. The story of Layers of Fear centers on Edward Mallory, a painter with Freudian issues who has descended into madness after his wife's death. He comes under the influence of a mysterious woman called The Presence, who encourages him to pursue personal experimentation regarding the five senses. The game was inspired by writer H.P. Lovecraft, in particular "The Outsider", written in 1927. A 16-year old boy spends his summer vacation with his family in a cabin at the sea. He is spending time with his brother, when one day he wakes up and finds that everyone has disappeared. The game received "mixed or average" reviews on all platforms according to the review aggregation website Metacritic. "Destructoid" critic Cassandra Khaw felt that it "[...] squanders its lovecraftian influences in favor of cheap jump scares and pacing issues. Teseo Naxos Crack
